26 Plaintiff, the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, by and through its counsel, KAREN P.
27 HEWITT, United States Attorney, and LAWRENCE A. CASPER, Assistant U.S. Attorney, hereby 28 files its Motions in Limine. These motions are based upon the files and records of this case.

ISTATEMENT OF FACTS*A. Statement of the Case

A federal grand jury on October 30, 2007 returned a two-count Indictment charging Defendants Stephen Francis Rhett and Janet Bernice Forbes with: (1) importing approximately 508.10 kilograms (1117.82 pounds) of marijuana, in violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 952 and 960, and (2) possessing with intent to distribute that same amount of marijuana, in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1). Defendant entered a not guilty plea before the Magistrate Judge on that same day.

B. Statement of Facts1. Primary Inspection: Defendant Rhett's Nervousness

On September 23, 2007, at approximately 10:20 p.m., Defendants Stephen Francis Rhett (Rhett) and Janet Bernice Forbes (Forbes) entered the United States from Mexico through the San Ysidro Port of Entry in a white 1999 Ford F-250 with California license plate (3QOS602) towing a trailer also bearing California license plates (4JL1558). Defendant Rhett was the driver and Defendant Forbes was the front seat passenger.

At primary inspection, Defendant Rhett told Customs and Border Protection Officer (CBPO) Fontanilla that they were not bringing anything from Mexico and that, instead, they went to Mexico to deliver building materials as donations to Mexico and that the "trailer is empty now." At CBPO Fontanilla's request, Rhett opened the trailer. Upon entering the trailer, CBPO Fontanilla noticed a new plywood floor in the trailer. CBPO Fontanilla tapped the floor with his flashlight and it sounded soft but solid. He also noticed that the underside of the floor appeared to have a space discrepancy. CBPO Aguilar followed CBPO Fontanilla to back him up at the rear of the trailer. CBPO again asked Defendant Rhett what he was bringing back from Mexico. Rhett responded, "Nothing, sir, is there any problem?" CBPO Aguilar began to unscrew one screw on the floor, pried the corner of the floor and noticed a space discrepancy and discovered blue packages. While CBPO Aguilar was removing one of the wooden floor panels, he noticed Defendant Rhett become so nervous that he proceeded to defecate on himself. Defendants Rhett and Forbes were escorted to the security office and the vehicle and trailer were driven to secondary for further inspection.

1 2. Secondary Inspection: Discovery of 508.10 Kilograms of Marijuana

2 Upon further examination by CBPO Everett and her narcotics detector dog, the dog alerted 3 to the presence of a narcotics odor coming from the rear bumper area of the trailer. Upon secondary 4 inspection by CBPO John Tobin, he observed that there were three saw horses, clothes and a case 5 of water in the trailer. He also observed that the flooring was clean. CBPO Tobin unscrewed the 6 flooring, lifted it to reveal the compartment and observed packages. CBPO Tobin probed one 7 package, which field tested positive for marijuana. Defendants were then placed under arrest. A 8 total of 108 packages were then removed from the vehicle and 508.10 kilograms of marijuana 9 (approximately 1117.82 pounds) were seized.

10 3. Defendant Stephen Rhett's Post-Miranda Statement

11 At approximately 1:00 a.m. on September 24, 2007, Defendant Rhett was read his Miranda 12 warnings, acknowledged his understanding and waived them orally and in writing and then provided 13 a videotaped statement to ICE Special Agent Daniel Duff; the statement was witnessed by ICE 14 Special Agent Christian Alva. Defendant Rhett, who, as discussed above, defecated on himself, 15 informed agents that he had certain medical conditions; accordingly, before the interview the agents 16 took appropriate precautions and provided Defendant Rhett with a paper shirt and mask. Defendant 17 Rhett, who had $16 in his possession, stated he was unemployed and homeless; he did not have a 18 driver's license in his possession. Defendant claimed that he was approached on the streets by 19 "Jen," a white female and an unidentified male, "Robert", who claimed to be from First Presbyterian 20 Church in San Diego. Rhett claimed that they offered him $100 each way to transport building 21 materials to Tijuana, Mexico. Rhett stated that he agreed to transport the materials for payment.

22 Defendant Rhett claimed he received the F-250 and trailer at the First Presbyterian 23 somewhere in downtown San Diego but claimed he could not recall the address or location. Upon 24 receiving the truck, Rhett claims he drove directly into Mexico where he met with an unknown man, 25 whom he followed to the "Flamingo Hotel" in Tijuana. Rhett claimed he stayed the night in the 26 hotel and met with "Jen" and a Hispanic female, whom he identified as "Silvia", the following 27 morning at approximately 6:00 a.m. On the morning of his arrest, Defendant Rhett met with 28

1 “Felipe” who is the father of “Jen.” Rhett claimed “Felipe” offered him $2,000 to smuggle four 2 undocumented aliens into the United States.

3 Rhett stated that, after crossing the border, he was to drive the vehicle and trailer to 4 Temecula and park them at a gas station parking lot off of the I-15 and California Oaks. Rhett 5 claimed he did not know his passenger. He claimed to have observed the trailer get loaded and 6 unloaded with building materials. Rhett admitted he was suspicious but denied having knowledge 7 of the marijuana in the trailer. “Jen’s” direct connect telephone number was obtained from 8 Defendant Rhett’s cellular telephone. The interview concluded at approximately 1:54 a.m., after 9 Rhett requested to consult with an attorney.

10 4. Defendant Janet Bernice Forbes’ Post-Miranda Statement

11 At approximately 3:00 a.m. on September 24, 2007 Defendant Janet Bernice Forbes was 12 interviewed in English by ICE Special Agent Duff and witnessed by Special Agent Alva. Defendant 13 Forbes stated that she had been unemployed for four years and that she is transient but has a San 14 Diego mailing address, which she provided. Forbes had $6.00 in her possession. Defendant was 15 read her Miranda rights in English, acknowledged she understood her rights and waived them orally 16 and in writing before providing a videotaped statement.

17 Forbes stated that she was on methadone for heroin addiction and that she frequents Tijuana 18 often to receive her methadone treatments. She claimed that, on the morning of her arrest, she went 19 to Tijuana, Mexico to receive one of her treatments. She stated that, after receiving her treatment, 20 she was approached by “Felipe,” who offered to pay her $500 to be a passenger in a vehicle that was 21 to cross illegal aliens into the United States. She stated that she was picked up by a taxi and driven 22 to a house in Colonia Libertad, Tijuana, Mexico. Upon her arrival, she observed approximately six 23 to eight people and met Defendant Rhett there. She stated that she spent approximately twenty 24 minutes at the house and then left with Rhett and an unknown Hispanic male named “Jimmy.” She 25 stated that they traveled approximately 10-15 minutes to a gas station possibly in Rosarito, Mexico, 26 where the white F-250 and trailer were located. Forbes stated that Defendant Rhett told her he had 27 made seven previous trips across the border but that this was his first time working for this family.
28

1 Upon receiving the F-250 and trailer, Rhett got into the vehicle with her and Jimmy; Jimmy 2 rode with them for a little while until Jimmy told Rhett that it was time for Jimmy to get out. Forbes
3 stated that Defendant Rhett was receiving numerous Nextel calls from a woman identified as "Jen."
4 Forbes said "Jen" was requesting that Rhett call her back after they crossed the border. While they 5 were in line to enter the United States at the port of entry, Jen was calling Rhett every two minutes.
6 She also claimed to have heard Jen tell Rhett that he needed to move over a few lanes to cross or 7 they would be sent to secondary; they were, however, unable to change lanes because of the trailer.
8 Forbes said that Rhett told her that the previous time he crossed he needed help from the previous 9 female passenger to lower the trailer gate.

10 Defendant Forbes claimed she thought she was transporting undocumented aliens and 11 believed she would receive her $500 payment in Mexico. She denied knowledge of the marijuana 12 and the interview concluded at approximately 4:00 a.m.

13 5. Defendants' Criminal Histories

14 Both Defendants have lengthy criminal histories, including multiple prior arrests and/or 15 convictions for narcotics related offenses.

16 (a) Stephen Rhett

17 On October 19, 2000 Defendant Rhett was convicted in the 299th District Court in Austin, 18 Texas of a felony intoxicated assault with a vehicle/serious bodily injury in violation of Texas Penal 19 Code Section 49.07 and was sentenced to 10 years in jail; his probation was subsequently revoked
20 in January 2003 when he was sentenced to 4 years in jail. Defendant Rhett also has a May 2001 21 misdemeanor conviction for possession of a controlled substance in Travis County, Texas in 22 violation of Texas Health & Safety Code Section 481.119(b). In addition, on January 28, 2003, 23 Defendant Rhett was convicted of violating Texas Penal Code Section 22.01(A)(1), a Class A 24 misdemeanor assault causing bodily injury. On September 24, 1999, Defendant Rhett was convicted 25 of a misdemeanor assault/family violence and sentenced to 45 days in jail.

26 (b) Janet Forbes

27 On January 23, 1992 Defendant was convicted of violating California Penal Code Section 28 01:647(A) for Disorderly Conduct: Solicit Lewd Act and 01:647(B) for prostitution. On January

1 3, 1992, this Defendant was convicted of aiding and abetting an illegal entry for which she was 2 sentenced to 60 days jail. On March 3, 1985, this Defendant was convicted of possession of a 3 controlled substance in violation of California HS 11377 and was sentenced to 21 days jail and 12 4 months probation. Defendant Forbes also has numerous theft and other convictions dating back to 5 the mid-1980's.

6 II

7 ARGUMENT

8 Rule 12(b) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure permits a party to “raise by pretrial 9 motion any defense, objection, or request that the court can determine without a trial of the general 10 issue.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(b). Mixed questions of law and fact remain the proper domain of the 11 district court, including preliminary questions regarding the admissibility of evidence, the 12 competency of witnesses, the voluntariness of confessions, and the preclusion of improper defenses.
13 See United States v. Gaudin, 515 U.S. 506, 525-26 (1995); United States v. Haynes, 143 F.3d 1089, 14 1090 (7th Cir. 1998) (motion in limine may be used to prevent introduction of evidence supporting 15 a defense whose elements cannot be established).

16 1. The Government’s Expert Testimony Should Be Admitted

17 The Government will present testimony from two expert witnesses: (1) Gary Goldberg, a 18 Senior Forensic Chemist for the Drug Enforcement Agency who will testify regarding the 19 identification of the drug seized based upon chemical analysis, and (2) Special Agent Joseph 20 DiMeglio of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) who will testify regarding the value of 21 the drugs, that the amount seized was a distributable quantity, and that marijuana traffickers do not 22 use unknowing couriers or blind mules. The Government does not intend to present testimony 23 regarding the general structure of drug trafficking organizations, unless Defendant opens the door 24 to such testimony. The Government has complied with its discovery obligations and provided 25 Defendant with written notice of the proposed expert witnesses and a copy of the chemist’s vitae.
26 The drug valuation reports prepared by Special Agent DiMeglio will also be disclosed upon receipt.

1 (a) Standards for Admissibility

2 The trial judge is the gatekeeper regarding the type and scope of expert testimony that should 3 be admitted in any particular trial, and has “broad latitude” in determining the relevance and 4 reliability of such testimony. See Kumho Tire Co. v. Carmichael, 526 U.S. 137, 142 (1999); United 5 States v. Murillo, 255 F.3d 1169, 1178 (9th Cir. 2000) (district court properly admitted expert 6 testimony of DEA agent). Determining whether expert testimony would assist the trier-of-fact in 7 understanding the facts in issue is within the sound discretion of the trial judge. See United States 8 v. Alonso, 48 F.3d 1536, 1539 (9th Cir. 1995); United States v. Lennick, 18 F.3d 814, 821 (9th Cir.
 9 1994). The district court may consider the Daubert test or any other factors in addressing relevant 10 reliability concerns regarding expert testimony. Kumho, 526 U.S. at 149-50 (noting that “there are 11 many different kinds of experts, and many different kinds of expertise,” including, “experts in drug 12 terms, handwriting analysis, criminal modus operandi,”); United States v. Brown, 415 F.3d 13 1257, 1266 (11th Cir. 2005) (Kumho means that “expert testimony that does not meet all or most 14 of the Daubert factors may sometimes be admissible.”).

15 The expert’s opinion may be based on hearsay or facts not in evidence when the facts or data 16 relied upon are of the type reasonably relied upon by experts in the field. Fed. R. Evid. 703; see, 17 e.g., United States v. Gil, 58 F.3d 1414, 1422 (9th Cir. 1995) (stating “[w]e have consistently held 18 that government agents or similar persons may testify as to the general practices of criminals to 19 establish the defendants’ modus operandi.”); see also United States v. Hankey, 203 F.3d 1160, 20 1168-70 (9th Cir. 2000) (affirming district court’s admission of gang expert testimony that gang 21 members would be subject to violent retribution if they testified against another gang member). The 22 facts or data underlying the expert’s opinion need not be admissible in evidence in order for the 23 opinion or inference to be admitted. Fed. R. Evid. 703.

24 (b) Identity of the Marijuana

25 Courts have admitted expert testimony by forensic chemists concerning the identification 26 of controlled substances. See United States v. Robinson, 59 F.3d 1318, 1322-23 (D.C. Cir. 1995).
 27 The Government will seek to have DEA Senior Forensic Chemist Gary Goldberg qualified as an 28 expert witness to testify that, based on the chemical analysis, the substance seized in this case was

1 marijuana. The forensic chemist will testify regarding his background and qualifications, and the 2 methodologies used to identify that the substance inside the packages was marijuana.

3 (c) Wholesale and Retail Value

4 The Government will seek to have Agent DiMeglio qualified as an expert witness in the area
5 of drug valuation and distributable quantity determination. Agent DiMeglio will testify regarding 6 his background and qualifications, the methodology used to determine the wholesale and retail 7 values of the marijuana seized in this case, and his opinion that the marijuana seized was intended 8 for distribution rather than for personal use. Agent DiMeglio will base his opinions on his 9 background, training, and experience investigating drug trafficking cases, his consultation of 10 numerous public and confidential sources of information, his hands-on experience interrogating drug 11 traffickers, debriefing confidential informants and cooperating defendants, and discussing 12 intelligence information with other federal, state, and local agents and law enforcement officers.

13 The testimony will focus on the wholesale and retail values of the marijuana seized in this 14 case, figures which have relevance to Defendant's knowledge and intent to distribute. See United 15 States v. Mendoza-Paz, 286 F.3d 1104, 1111-12 (9th Cir. 2002) (narcotics valuation expert properly 16 admitted at trial); United States v. Savinovich, 845 F.2d 834, 838 (9th Cir. 1988) (finding that price 17 and quantity of narcotics is relevant to defendant's intent to distribute). The Ninth Circuit has 18 upheld the admissibility of expert testimony as to the retail value of drugs. See United States v.
19 Ogbuehi, 18 F.3d 807, 812 (9th Cir. 1994).

20 (d) Distributable Quantity

21 Agent DiMeglio will state his opinion that the amount of marijuana seized was for 22 distribution rather than a personal use amount. This opinion will be based on the value and amount 23 of marijuana seized, and the manner in which the marijuana was packaged and concealed in the 24 vehicle. See Glenn, 667 F.2d at 1292; Sanchez-Lopez, 879 F.2d at 555; Savinovich, 845 F.2d at 25 838.

26 (e) Unknowning Courier

27 Agent DiMeglio may present expert testimony that drug traffickers generally do not entrust 28 large quantities of drugs to unknowing couriers or "blind mules." See United Murillo, 255 F. 3d 1169, 1176-77 (9th Cir. 2001) (unknowing drug courier testimony was admissible in a drug possession case to attack the defendant's defense that he was "simply an unknowing courier."); United States v. Campos, 217 F.3d 707, 712 (9th Cir. 2000) (unknowing drug courier testimony was admissible in a importation case). Expert testimony that drug traffickers do not entrust large quantities of drugs to unknowing transporters is not drug courier profile testimony. See United States v. Cordoba, 104 F.3d 225, 230 (9th Cir. 1997).

(f) Structure of Drug Trafficking Operations

The Government does not intend to present expert testimony about the general structure of drug smuggling operations, including the division of labor and drug smuggling techniques. The Government reserves the right, however, to present such testimony if defendants open the door by, for example, raising the issue of lack of fingerprints taken from the vehicle or raising other door opening issues. See United States v. Pineda-Torres, 287 F.3d 860, 865 (9th Cir. 2002); United States v. Vallejo, 237 F.3d 1008, 1016, n.3, (9th Cir. 2001), as amended, 246 F. 3d 1150 (9th Cir. 2001); United States v. Alatorre, 222 F.3d 1098, 1100 n. 3 (9th Cir. 2000). That door may be opened through Defendant's cross-examination of the Government's witness, United States v. Beltran-Rios, 878 F.2d 1208, 1210-13 (9th Cir. 1989), or a defendant's introduction of negative profile testimony, namely, evidence suggesting that the defendant possesses certain characteristics inconsistent with an inference of guilt. United States v. Sotelo-Murillo, 887 F.2d 176, 183 (9th Cir. 1989).

2. Evidence Regarding Demeanor and Appearance Should Be Admitted

Evidence regarding a defendant's demeanor and physical appearance is admissible as circumstantial evidence that is helpful to the jury's determination as to whether a defendant knew drugs were concealed in the vehicle. Fed. R. Evid. 701; United States v. Hursh, 217 F.3d 761, 768 (9th Cir. 2000) (jury may consider defendant's nervousness during questioning at a port of entry); United States v. Fuentes-Cariaga, 209 F.3d 1140, 1144 (9th Cir. 2000) (it is within the ordinary province of jurors to draw inferences from an undisputed fact such as a defendant's nervousness at Calexico Port of Entry); United States v. Barbosa, 906 F.2d 1366, 1368 (9th Cir. 1990) (jury could infer guilty knowledge from a defendant's apparent nervousness and anxiety during airport inspection); United States v. Lui, 941 F.2d 844, 848 (9th Cir. 1991) (jury could consider guilty knowledge from a defendant's acting disinterested during airport inspection); United States v. Mastberg, 503 F.2d 465, 470 (9th Cir. 1974) ("under the modern, and probably majority, view, a lay witness may state his opinion that a person appeared nervous"). If the testimony regarding "a combination of circumstances and appearances which cannot be adequately described and presented with the force and clearness as they appeared to the witness, the witness may state his impressions and opinions based on what he observed." United States v. Yazzie, 976 F.2d 1252, 1255 (9th Cir. 1992) (quoting United States v. Skeet, 665 F.2d 983, 985 (9th Cir. 1982).

Here, Government officers and agents may properly testify to Defendants' behavior, demeanor, and physical appearance, as they have personal knowledge based upon their observations of Defendants. The Government witnesses should be allowed to testify regarding Defendants' demeanor and appearance during their encounters with Defendants.

3. The Court Should Admit 609 Evidence

Federal Rule of Evidence 609 provides that evidence that an accused has been convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment in excess of one year "shall be admitted if the court determines that the probative value of admitting this evidence outweighs its prejudicial value to the accused." United States v. Martinez-Martinez, 369 F.3d 1076, 1088 (9th Cir. 2004). In United States v. Cook, 608 F.2d 1175, 1185 n.8 (9th Cir. 1979) (en banc), overruled on other grounds, Luce v. United States, 469 U.S. 38 (1984), the Ninth Circuit set forth a five-factor test for balancing the relative probativeness and unfair prejudice of a prior conviction. Under this five-factor test, this court should consider: (1) the impeachment value of the prior crime; (2) the temporal relationship between the conviction and the defendant's subsequent criminal history; (3) the similarity between the past and the charged crime; (4) the importance of defendant's testimony; and (5) the centrality of the credibility issue. Id. This court need not analyze each of the five factors explicitly. See United States v. Jimenez, 214 F.3d 1095, 1098 (9th Cir. 2000).

If Defendant Rhett chooses to testify, his credibility will be a central issue in the case and Defendant's character for honesty is a factor that should be carefully weighed by the Court. The importance of Defendant's testimony is crucial in a case such as this, where Defendant would

1 presumably be called to testify only if he intended to claim that: (1) he lacked knowledge of the 2 drugs in the vehicle he was driving into this country. If Defendant chooses to testify at trial, the 3 United States should be allowed to demonstrate Defendant's lack of trustworthiness by utilizing his 4 prior conviction for impeachment purposes.

5 In 2000, well within the ten year period, Defendant Rhett was convicted of a felony
6 intoxicated assault with a vehicle/serious bodily injury in violation of Texas Penal Code Section 7 49.07 and was sentenced to 10 years in jail. Accordingly, the United States should be allowed to 8 introduce evidence of Defendant Rhett's prior conviction under Rule 609 if Defendant elects to 9 testify at trial.

10
11 4. This Court Should Preclude Reference To Defendants' Health, Age, Education and Potential Punishment

12 Evidence of, and thus argument referring to, a defendant's health, age, education and 13 potential punishment is inadmissible and improper. Fed. R. Evid. 402 provides that "[e]vidence 14 which is not relevant is not admissible." Rule 403 provides further that, even relevant evidence may 15 be inadmissible "if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice." 16 The Ninth Circuit Model Jury Instructions explicitly instruct jurors to "not be influenced by any 17 personal likes or dislikes, opinions, prejudices, or sympathy." § 3.1 (2003 Edition). Additionally, 18 [i]t has long been the law that it is inappropriate for a jury to consider or be informed of the 19 consequences of their verdict." United States v. Frank, 956 F.2d 872, 879 (9th Cir. 1991); see 20 Shannon v. United States, 512 U.S. 573, 579 (1994)(jury should be instructed to reach its verdict 21 without regard to the sentence that might be imposed).

22 Reference to either of the Defendants' health, age, finances, education and potential 23 punishment may be relevant at sentencing. At trial, however, such reference is not only irrelevant 24 and unfairly prejudicial, but a blatant play for sympathy and jury nullification.

25 5. The Court Should Preclude Self-Serving Hearsay

26 An attempt by either Defendant to prove his or her own statements through the testimony of 27 another witness would be impermissible, because those statements are inadmissible hearsay.
28 Defendant cannot rely upon Rule 801(d)(2), because he or she is the proponent of the evidence and

1 because the evidence is not being offered against him. Defendant would simply be seeking to have 2 self-serving hearsay brought before the jury without the benefit of cross-examination by the 3 Government. See United States v. Fernandez, 839 F.2d 639, 640 (9th Cir. 1988) (per curiam).
 4 While a defendant is certainly entitled to invoke his or her Fifth Amendment right to remain silent
 5 at trial, Defendant is not also entitled to also present self-serving hearsay to the jury without cross-
 6 examination. See Id. (“It seems obvious defense counsel wished to place Fernandez’s statement 7 to Bateman before the jury without subjecting Fernandez to cross-examination, precisely what the 8 hearsay rule forbids.”). Nor can either Defendant rely upon Rule 801(d)(1)(B) concerning prior 9 consistent statements. A prior consistent statement is not admissible if it is introduced in the 10 absence of impeachment. United States v. Navarro-Varelas, 541 F.2d 1331, 1334 (9th Cir. 1976).
 11 Defendant cannot rely upon the state of mind exception under Rule 803(3) because that is a limited 12 hearsay exception that “does not permit the witness to relate any of the declarant’s statements as to 13 why he held the particular state of mind, or what he might have believed that would have induced 14 the state of mind.” Emmert, 829 F.2d at 810 (quoting United States v. Cohen, 631 F.2d 1223, 1225 15 (5th Cir. 1980)).

16 6. The Court Should Preclude Any Expert Testimony For Either Defendant

17 The Government, pursuant to Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure 16(b) and 26.2, requested 18 that Defendants disclose to the Government all exhibits and documents which that Defendant intends 19 to introduce as evidence in his or her case-in-chief at trial or which were prepared by a witness 20 whom the Defendant intends to call at trial. To date, neither Defendant has provided neither notice 21 of any expert witness, nor any reports by expert witnesses. Accordingly, Defendants should not now 22 be permitted to introduce expert testimony.

23 If, however, the Court determines that either Defendant may introduce expert testimony, the 24 United States requests a hearing to determine this expert’s qualifications and relevance of the 25 expert’s testimony pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 702 and Kumho Tire Co. v. Carmichael, 26 526 U.S. 137, 150 (1999). See United States v. Rincon, 11 F.3d 922 (9th Cir. 1993) (affirming the 27 district court’s decision to not admit the defendant’s proffered expert testimony because there had 28 been no showing that the proposed testimony related to an area that was recognized as a science or that the proposed testimony would assist the jury in understanding the case); see also United States v. Hankey, 203 F.3d 1160, 1167 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 530 U.S. 1268 (2000).

7. The Court Should Exclude Witnesses During Trial Except For The United States' Case Agent

The United States moves to exclude all witnesses from the courtroom during trial, with the exception of the United States' case agent. Both counsel should be entitled to be aided at counsel table by someone thoroughly versed in the facts of the case. Each defense counsel will be able to consult with their respective defendant in this regard, and therefore the Government should be afforded the same ability to consult with someone familiar with the facts of the case.

Under Fed. R. Evid. 615(3), "a person whose presence is shown by a party to be essential to the presentation of the party's cause" should not be ordered excluded from the court during trial. The case agent in this matter has been critical in moving the investigation forward to this point and is considered by the United States to be essential to the presentation. As such, the case agent's presence at trial is necessary to the United States.

8. The Court Should Preclude Evidence of Prior Good Acts

Defense counsel should be prohibited from arguing or eliciting testimony or evidence concerning either Defendant's prior good conduct. "Evidence of good conduct is not admissible to negate criminal intent." United States v. Camejo, 929 F.2d 610, 613 (11th Cir. 1991). Under Rule 404(b), evidence of other acts, including other "good" acts (or the mere absence of prior "bad" acts), are "not admissible to prove the character of a person in order to show action in conformity therewith." Fed. R. Evid. 404(b). Furthermore, even when character evidence is admissible, evidence of specific instances of conduct is not admissible unless "character or a trait of character of a person is an essential element of a charge, claim, or defense." Fed. R. Evid. 405(b); see also Michelson v. United States, 335 U.S. 469, 477 (1948) ("The witness may not testify about defendant's specific acts or courses of [good] conduct or his possession of a particular disposition or of benign mental and moral traits.").

In particular, testimony concerning a Defendant's lack of a recent criminal record is inadmissible, unless such character evidence is an essential element of the charge or defense. See, e.g., United States v. Thomas, 134 F.3d 975, 979-80 (9th Cir. 1998) (testimony concerning defendant's lack of a prior criminal record admissible where defendant raises an entrapment defense, because defendant's character "is an 'essential element' of the defense" of entrapment; specifically, the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was predisposed to commit the crime); see United States v. Barry, 814 F.2d 1400, 1404 (9th Cir. 1987) ("the trial court acted within its discretion in concluding that this general evidence of an absence of criminal conduct was not probative of appellant's state of mind at the time he committed the crime"); United States v. Hedgcorth, 873 F.2d 1307, 1313 (9th Cir. 1989) (citing Barry with approval; "evidence of specific acts is generally inadmissible"); see also Government of Virgin Islands v. Grant, 775 F.2d 508, 512 (3d Cir. 1985) ("testimony that one has never been arrested is especially weak character evidence; a clever criminal, after all, may never be caught").

Thus, the defense should be precluded from presenting evidence of any specific instances of good conduct.

9. The Court Should Preclude Evidence of Duress And Necessity

A pretrial motion is an appropriate means of testing the sufficiency of a proffered defense and precluding evidence thereof if the defense is found to be insufficient. Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(b) ("Any defense, objection, or request which is capable of determination without the trial of the general issue may be raised before trial by motion."); United States v. Peltier, 693 F.2d 96, 97-98 (9th Cir. 1982) (per curiam); United States v. Shapiro, 669 F.2d 593, 596-97 (9th Cir. 1982); see also Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(e).

Generally, motions are capable of pretrial determination if they raise issues of law, rather than issues of fact. United States v. Jones, 542 F.2d 661, 664 (6th Cir. 1976). Courts have specifically approved the pretrial exclusion of evidence relating to a legally insufficient duress defense on numerous occasions. See United States v. Bailey, 444 U.S. 394 (1980) (addressing duress); United States v. Moreno, 102 F.3d 994, 997 (9th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 118 S. Ct. 86 (1997) (addressing duress). Similarly, a district court may preclude a necessity defense where "the evidence, as described in the defendant's offer of proof, is insufficient as a matter of law to support the proffered defense." United States v. Schoon, 971 F.2d 193, 195 (9th Cir. 1992).

1 In order to rely on a defense of duress, defendant must establish a prima facie case that:

- 2 (1) Defendant committed the crime charged because of an immediate threat of death or
- 3 serious bodily harm;
- 4 (2) Defendant had a well-grounded fear that the threat would be carried out; and
- 5 (3) There was no reasonable opportunity to escape the threatened harm.

6 United States v. Bailey, 444 U.S. 394, 410-11 (1980); Moreno, 102 F.3d at 997. If Defendant fails 7 to make a threshold showing as to each and every element of the defense, defense counsel should 8 not burden the jury with comments relating to such a defense. See, e.g., Bailey, 444 U.S. at 416.

9 A defendant must establish the existence of four elements to be entitled to a necessity 10 defense:

- 11 (1) that she was faced with a choice of evils and chose the lesser evil;
- 12 (2) that she acted to prevent imminent harm;
- 13 (3) that she reasonably anticipated a causal relationship between her conduct and the
- 14 harm to be avoided; and
- 15 (4) that there was no other legal alternatives to violating the law.

16 See Schoon, 971 F.2d at 195; United States v. Dorrell, 758 F.2d 427, 430-31 (9th Cir. 1985). A 17 court may preclude invocation of the defense if “proof is deficient with regard to any of the four 18 elements.” See Schoon, 971 F.2d at 195.

19 The United States hereby moves for an evidentiary ruling precluding defense counsel from 20 making any comments during the opening statement or the case-in-chief that relate to any purported 21 defense of “duress” or “coercion” or “necessity” unless Defendant makes a prima facie showing 22 satisfying each and every element of the defense. The United States respectfully requests that the 23 Court rule on this issue prior to opening statements to avoid the prejudice, confusion, and invitation 24 for jury nullification that would result from such comments.

25 10. Renewed Motion for Reciprocal Discovery

26 Neither Defendant has produced any reciprocal discovery. The Government requests that 27 each Defendant comply with Rule 16(b) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, as well as Rule 28 26.2 which requires the production of prior statements of all witnesses, except for those of 1 Defendant. Neither Defendant has provided the Government with any documents or statements.

2 Accordingly, the Government intends to object at trial and ask this Court to suppress any evidence 3 at trial which has not been provided to the Government.

4 Dated: December 20, 2007

5 Respectfully submitted,
